

Permanent makeup

Do you ever feel like there are just not enough hours in the day?

When every minute counts, sometimes it's nice to take a few things off your list on a permanent basis. The solution you are looking for may well be permanent makeup - a cosmetic procedure that involves tattooing the skin to give the appearance of wearing makeup.

Using inks to change the pigmentation of the dermis, the procedure can be used to replicate eye makeup and lipstick, and also draw in missing features such as eyebrows or beauty spots. In some cases it is used also for disguise - to hide scars, white spots or facial blemishes. Once you have decided what kind of look you want, and chosen your colours, a preparatory outline is then sketched onto your skin. The pigment is applied with a hollow needle, and the colour released into fine holes in the top layer of your skin. The procedure may sting slightly and the colours will take a few weeks to fade, but there are no side effects and you will be left with a long term natural looking solution, that saves you time, and keeps you looking fresh and ready to go, every day.
